Chapter 1 by Story Wars

There once was a babysitter. She came to someone's house. He wanted her to babysit for him and his wife. He and his wife told the babysitter what to do with the kids. Then, he and his wife left for a play. The babysitter was inside the house. She watched TV with the kids for a while. Then, one of the three kids said, "Can we have tomatoes?" The babysitter said yes. She went down to the basement to get a knife so she could cut up the tomatoes. In the basement, she saw a window. She saw an old woman holding a knife. The babysitter went back upstairs. She came back to the basement to the window again. In the window, she saw a woman holding a bloody knife. The babysitter went back upstairs. The parents came back. They asked her where the kids were. She said that she did not know. This is what she said, "I went downstairs to cut up tomatoes for the kids. I looked into one of the windows and saw a woman with a knife. I came back to the window a few moments later, and I saw a woman with a bloody knife." Then, the parents said, "We don't have any windows in the basement. We only have a mirror."
